Paul Miller of Flow Circus was our featured performer during week six of the Get A Clue collaborative summer reading program. In a summer of outstanding entertainers, my staff and I agreed that Flow Circus stood out as the most hilarious, inventive, and child-pleasing show our library hosted.

Mr. Miller brings only himself and a five-minute set up. He provides pre-show entertainment, saving librarians from having to 'perform' for the ten minutes before the show begins. The audience warms to him immediately because he seems like a big child!

His Get A Clue show consists of juggling, making balloon objects, and a bit of magic incorporating the library theme. The most memorable part of the show, however, is the repartee that reaches ridiculous heights. Adults enjoy this show as much as the kids.

I recommend Flow Circus for any group that wants to forget their troubles and laugh for forty minutes. I only ask that you save a week for me, because he will be coming back next year!
